

Kootenai Kangal Questionnaire V.1

Greetings and warmest welcome to Kootenai Kangals. Thank you for your interest in this amazing breed. We would like to start off by sharing some basic facts about Livestock Guardian Dogs and the Kangal.

Your puppy could live for up to 18 years. It will take three years of high-quality food and continuous growth for them to reach an adult weight of between 100-180 pounds and stand approximately 28-34 inches tall at the shoulder.

This breed is purpose-built to be outside working and guarding your livestock. They are not pets and will not do well being placed in such a role. One of their first lines of defense is a series of loud barks. Please be aware that this may be bothersome to you and your neighbors.

To ensure the continued health of your pup s/he will need your guidance, patience, love and training as well as regular vaccinations and veterinary care, clean water, quality food, and a minimum of one secured acre in which to run and exercise. Until approximately two years of age, we highly recommend that the dog is not left with livestock unsupervised.

By initialing in the space provided both parents acknowledge that they understand and agree to these minimum requirements in the care and keeping of their puppy.
